“From Every Nation, Tribe, People”

Facilitated by Bret Wightman

How did a faith that is Hebrew in origin spread to the gentile nations? The early church reveals significant non-Hebrew elements in its makeup and theology. Some of the areas we will study are: the increasing number of gentile converts in Acts; Paul, the Roman citizen of a Greek city, and the Hellenized letter forms of I Corinthians and Titus; and specific aspects of other books such as the Gospel of John with its representation of Christ as Logos, “the Word.”
